

FAQS

LEATHER

Do you work with real leather?

- Yes, we work with leather hides and faux leathers.

Is leather durable enough for high-traffic environments?

- Commercial-grade leather is highly durable and often used for hospitality and public spaces.

How is leather different from other fabrics you work with?

- Authentic leather is an organic material that carries natural, inherited marks or flaws. Unlike manufactured fabrics, hides are irregularly-shaped, and the usable space of each hide varies.

How do you use leather for your installations?

- We can use leather and faux leather for upholstered seating, wall panels, and specialty applications including wrapped door handles, columns, railings, or architectural features.

What are the limitations of leather when compared to other surface materials/fabrics?

- All fabrics have best uses and limitations. Reach out to one of our A&D reps for project-specific questions at info@aeccorp.com.

I have a questions about a prefabricated specialty leather product. Who do I contact?

- AEC is not a leather supplier - we fabricate and install interior elements using your specified leather. For specific product questions, contact the product manufacturer rep directly.
